Review date	January 2024

1. Aims

This remote learning policy for staff aims to:

- Ensure consistency in the approach to remote learning for pupils who aren't in school
- Set out expectations for all members of the school community with regards to remote learning
- Provide appropriate guidelines for data protection

2. Roles and responsibilities

2.1 Teachers

Teachers may be required to provide remote learning from home or school. It may be for the whole of their timetable or for a mix groups of students self-isolating and those attending school. This will depend on the decisions taken by the school and trust, based on public health advice. When providing remote learning, teachers must be available between 08.40 and 15.00 (excluding lunch time).

If they're unable to work for any reason during this time, for example due to sickness or caring for a dependent, they should report this using the normal absence procedure.

Staff must act in line with the Staff Code of Conduct.

When providing remote learning, teachers are responsible for:

- Setting work:
 - For the classes they usually teach unless Heads of Faculty/department co-ordinate collaboration. It may be necessary to set work for colleagues unable to work. To facilitate greater collaboration it may be necessary to have a new timetable.
 - The amount of work set should be able to be completed in the curriculum time allocated that day according to student timetables. Longer pieces of work must be set in hour chunks set for the relevant remote learning lesson. As in the classroom, students' additional needs should be catered for wherever possible.
 - Work should be set by 5pm the day before the scheduled lesson. The deadline being set for the end of the completion day.
 - All work set should be uploaded or signposted on Show My Homework (SMHW) as a single point of reference for parents/carers and students. The use of other platforms such as Office 365 and particularly MS Teams is encouraged where appropriate.
 - Teachers need to be familiar and able to use SMHW, Office 365 and MS Teams, engaging with CPD on offer where this is not the case (written guides, video, live sessions).
 - Teachers should ensure they have internet access at home and suitable devices to be able to deliver remote learning. Where this is not the case, they should inform Vice Principal T&L
 - Teachers should maintain regular contact with their Heads of Faculty and/or line managers to ensure the coordinated approach to remote learning.
 - Where teachers are self-isolating and able to work, they will be required to perform the duties set out in this and other relevant policies which may include setting remote learning and/or learning for students in school. It could include using MS Teams or on-demand resources to deliver content to students in school.

Teachers may be required to set remote learning for students absent for a period of time, approved by the school. Where this is a significant number of children, Heads of Faculty will endeavour to coordinate work to reduce the impact of staff that are teaching in school.

- Providing feedback:

Providing timely and helpful feedback is a cornerstone of good teaching and learning, and whilst this may be more challenging with remote learning, teachers will endeavour to provide regular feedback to students on pieces of work that they are required to submit. Under normal circumstances, not all pieces of work are formally assessed by teachers and this would continue to be the case should the school employ remote learning.

 - Feedback should be provided in line with normal faculty/departmental policy, allowing for the use of remote platforms.
 - Make clear in the instructions for work whether work must be submitted and how. Various platforms can do this. The most sophisticated for individual feedback is MS Teams.
 - Effective feedback could be through whole class feedback, individual feedback and online quizzes that may self-mark or allow for extended answers. A variety of methods should be employed over a period of time.
 - Feedback to students should be shared in a timely fashion
 - The principles of DIRT (Directed Improvement and Reflection Time) should where appropriate be allowed for in work being set
- Keeping in touch with pupils who aren't in school and their parents/carers:
 - Contact from parents/carers should be responded to by email or phone. If using a personal phone, measures should be taken to withhold the number being dialled from. If the volume of contact is excessive, the Head of Faculty/Department will support.
 - Contact should be made, wherever possible, within standard working hours.
 - Where students or parents/carers have a concern, teachers should endeavour to resolve the issue. However, if this is not possible or the issue is more serious, they should pass it on to their line manager or SLT. If the concern is regarding safeguarding, staff should follow the safeguarding policy.
 - Records of student engagement and learning should be kept (e.g. in a markbook) and, where appropriate, shared. Where students do not appear to be engaging, contact with students and parents/carers should be made. Good work and effort should be rewarded in line with the Behaviour Policy.
- Attending virtual meetings with staff, parents/carers and pupils:
 - Staff are expected to attend and participate in virtual meetings as appropriate. These may include faculty, department, year group and whole school meetings
 - Staff should be dressed appropriately according to the dress code
 - Staff should be aware of the location that virtual meetings are held e.g. avoid areas with background noise, nothing inappropriate in the background (some devices allow the background to be blurred)

2.2 Teaching assistants

Teaching assistants may be required to support remote learning from home or school. It may be for the whole of their timetable or for a mix groups of students self-isolating and those attending school. This will depend on the decisions taken by the school and trust, based on public health advice. When assisting with remote learning, teaching assistants must be available between 08.40 and 15.00 (excluding lunch time).

If they're unable to work for any reason during this time, for example due to sickness or caring for a dependent, they should report this using the normal absence procedure.

Staff must act in line with the Staff Code of Conduct.

When assisting with remote learning, teaching assistants are responsible for:

- Supporting SEND pupils:
 - Pupils on SEND register will be allocated a named TA who will make at least weekly contact via email, phone or MS Teams
 - Discuss learning tasks and identify any issues which the TA will then forward to the teacher for additional guidance
 - Where HLTAs are allocated an intervention group, they will set work appropriate to that group or individual
 - Teaching assistants will be timetabled for cover of the key worker/vulnerable group according to need
 - Staff may be required to support remote learning for students absent for period of time, approved by the school. Where this is a significant number of children, the SENCO will endeavour to coordinate work to reduce the impact of staff that are supporting in school.
 - Where teaching assistants are self-isolating and able to work, they will be required to perform the duties set out in this and other relevant policies which may include supporting remote learning and/or learning for students in school. It could include using MS Teams or on-demand resources to support content for students in school.
- Attending virtual meetings with staff, parents/carers and pupils:
 - Staff are expected to attend and participate in virtual meetings as appropriate. These may include faculty, department, year group and whole school meetings
 - Staff should be dressed appropriately according to the dress code
 - Staff should be aware of the location that virtual meetings are held e.g. avoid areas with background noise, nothing inappropriate in the background (some devices allow the background to be blurred)
